

Deputy Steven Warburton

Steven Warburton has been training dogs for the past 10 years while educating as a fire fighter, EMT, and post certified officer. He started out training dogs for search and rescue in 2008 in all disciplines: trailing, tracking, cadaver, and area. He was hired as a certified deputy in 2012 where he became a canine handler and trainer with Yavapai County Sheriff's office. As a continued hobby and passion to train dogs in a variety of skills, he is currently working to train shed and blood tracking dogs. Steven, also known as Warby, enjoys working with others that share the same passion to train working dogs with a strong emphasis on foundation work and consistency to build a quality canine for the right job.
